DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

 A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1,2,4-6,14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Shah (US 6,029,065).

Regarding claim 1, Shah teaches a mobile voice communication device comprising: a wireless transceiver circuit for transmitting and receiving voice communications and for receiving data (see figs. 1-5); a digital processor (see figs.1-3); and a memory storing application program code which when executed on the digital processor causes the mobile voice communication device to provide predetermined functionality to the user of the mobile voice communication device, said predetermined functionality having basic features and having enhanced features that are in addition to the basic features, said application program code having a deactivated state in which the mobile voice communication device provides said basic features to the user without providing said enhanced features and an activated state in which the mobile voice communication device provides the enhanced features, and wherein toggling between the deactivated and activated states is accomplished by receiving through the wireless transceiver circuit a transmitted key that was sent by a remote source to that mobile voice communication device (see figs. 1-5; col. 11, line 38 to col. 12, line 22). In this case, the state before the base station 200 activates the Enhanced Vocoder feature of the mobile reads on the deactivate state of the present invention. The burst message 214 including EF and feature code for Enhanced Vocoder feature reads on the transmitted key of the present invention.

Regarding claim 2, Shah teaches the mobile voice communication device is a cellular telephone (see figs. 1-3).

Regarding claim 4, Shah teaches the transmitted key is an activation key that switches the application program code from the deactivated state to the activated state (see figs. 1-5; col. 11, line 38 to col. 12, line 22).

Regarding claim 5, Shah teaches the transmitted key uniquely identifies the selected device among the plurality of wireless communication devices (see col. 8, lines 17-48).

Regarding claim 6, the claim includes limitations as that of claim 1, and therefore is interpreted and rejected for same reason set forth in the rejection of claim 1. In addition, Shah also inherently teaches establishing an account for each of a plurality of wireless voice communication device as it is a basic step of obtaining a cellular phone account to which user pays basic and optional features.

Regarding claim 14, the claim includes limitations as that of claim 6, and therefore is interpreted and rejected for same reason set forth in the rejection of claim 6.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 3,7-13,15-45, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shah (US 6,029,065) in view of Wheeler et al. (US 5,572,583).

Regarding claim 3, Shah, as mentioned above, teaches the limitations of claim 1, but does not mention that the predetermined functionality that is provided by the application program code is speech recognition. Wheeler, in an analogous art, teaches an advanced intelligent network that offers a variety of enhanced features such as voice mail and voice recognition, etc. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to provide the above teaching of Wheeler to Shah in order for the combined system to offer user services based on speech recognition without requiring addition to equipment at the central office as taught by Wheeler (see col. 2, lines 48-51).

Regarding claim 7, the claim includes limitations as that of claim 3, and therefore is interpreted and rejected for same reason set forth in the rejection of claim 3.

Regarding claim 8, the combination of Shah Wheeler teaches the first state is the activated state and the second state is the deactivated state (see Shah, figs. 1-5; col. 11, line 38 to col. 12, line 22).

Regarding claim 9, examiner takes official notice that prior to selecting one of the plurality of wireless communication devices on which to send the key, sending a message to the selected device for notifying a user that the enhanced features are available after a trial period for a fee as this is a well known marketing strategy of cellular service providers (also refer to patent US 7,046,997).

Regarding claim 10, the claim is a duplicate of claim 8, and therefore is rejected for the same reason set forth in the rejection of claim 8.

Regarding claim 11, the combination of Shah and Wheeler teaches that the key is an activation key that uniquely identifies the selected device among the plurality of wireless communication devices (see Shah, col. 8, lines 17-48).

Regarding claim 12, it is well known in the art that users are monthly billed for basic and upgraded or enhanced features.

Regarding claim 13, the combination of Shah and Wheeler teaches prior to selecting one of the plurality of wireless communication devices on which to activate the enhanced functionality, sending a message to that device providing notification of the availability of the enhanced features for a fee (see Shah, col. 11, line 38 to col. 12, line 22).

Regarding claim 15, the claim is a duplicate of claim 3, and therefore is rejected for the same reason set forth in the rejection of claim 3.

Regarding claim 16, the rejections of claims 1 and 3 are herein incorporated.

Regarding claim 17, the combination of Shah and Wheeler teaches the mobile communication device is a cellular telephone (see Shah figs.1-3).

Regarding claims 18,19,20,21,22, examiner takes official notice that the limitations recited in the claims are well known in the art.

Regarding claim 23, the rejection of claim 6 is herein incorporated.

Art Unit: 2618

Regarding claim 24, the combination of Shah and Wheeler teaches the digital key is transmitted by at least one of a carder and a service provider (see Shah, figs. 1-5; col. 11, line 38 to col. 12, line 22).

Regarding claim 25, the combination of Shah and Wheeler teaches the digital key corresponds to at least one of a password and an encrypted key (see Shah, figs. 1-5; col. 11, line 38 to col. 12, line 22).

Regarding claim 26, the combination of Shah and Wheeler teaches the enhanced functionality is activated by a carrier associated with the mobile communication device (see Shah, figs. 1-5; col. 11, line 38 to col. 12, line 22).

Regarding claims 27-32, the rejection of claim 9 is herein incorporated.

Regarding claim 33, the rejection of claim 16 is herein incorporated.

Regarding claims 34-36,39, examiner takes official notice that the limitations recited in the claims are well known in the art.

Regarding claim 37, the rejection of claim 24 is herein incorporated.

Regarding claim 38, the rejection of claim 25 is herein incorporated.

Regarding claim 40, the rejection of claim 27 is herein incorporated.

Regarding claim 41, the rejection of claim 28 is herein incorporated.

Regarding claim 42, the rejection of claim 29 is herein incorporated.

Regarding claim 43, the rejection of claim 30 is herein incorporated.

Regarding claim 44, the rejection of claim 31 is herein incorporated.

Regarding claim 45, the rejection of claim 32 is herein incorporated.
